1. Units of the Soviet Mavy engaged in maneuvers in the Baltic Sea in October 1950.

2. One group of vessels, which included destroyers, submarines, torpedo boats, fast motor boats, and landing craft, used Rugen Island as a support point. At the same time a flotilla of larger vessels, some of which had two or three smokestacks, maneuvered farther to the east.

3. The two flotillas are reported to have met in Soviet territorial waters, off the Baltic coast.
